

Cancer services co-management agreement disclosure

In spring 2017, HonorHealth and nearly 60 Valley oncologists made an agreement that calls for the health system to share a portion of cost savings attributed to quality enhancement in the oncology program with the physicians.

The program has been modeled after other successful programs from the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation and prestigious healthcare institutions in the U.S.

This arrangement brings physicians and hospitals together to collaborate on areas that include:

- Quality monitoring and improvement.
- Improved care coordination.
- Sharing best practices.

Nationally, similar arrangements have resulted in reducing:

- Duplicated or unnecessary tests or procedures.
- Cancer patients' utilization of the emergency room by allowing greater access to their oncology providers.
- Avoidable inpatient hospital admissions.

In addition to national benchmarks, the HonorHealth program calls for collaboration with physicians to provide:

- Improved access to palliative care.
- Adoption of national best practices.
- Improved patient satisfaction with pain management.
- Discharge information.
- Physician communication.

The physicians are not required to follow any of the requirements of the program if doing so is not in their best interest. For information about the program, contact Matthew Schneider, HonorHealth associate vice president for oncology services at matthew.schneider@honorhealth.com
